Georgia State University's 2010-2011

Law Review Symposium

An Intersection of Laws: Citizens United v. FEC

Friday, November 12, 2010

Law Offices of McKenna Long & Aldridge LLP – Atlanta, Georgia

The Georgia State University College of Law will hold a one-day symposium on Friday, November 12, 2010, to discuss the controversial Supreme Court decision in Citizens United v. FEC. In Citizens United, the Court overruled Austin v. Michigan Chamber of Commerce and portions of McConnell v. FEC, holding bans on corporate independent campaign expenditures are unconstitutional under the First Amendment.

Specifically, the Georgia State Law Review symposium will focus on how this case reflects the intersection of First Amendment Law, Corporate Law, and Election Law. The symposium itself will feature three 90-minute panel discussions focusing on each of these discreet areas. In addition, we will have a lunch time presentation by Heather Gerken of Yale Law School and a 60-minute panel discussion focusing on the impact of the decision on the Midterm Elections.

Speakers will include:

- Gene Nichol, Director, Center on Poverty, Work and Opportunity, University of North Carolina
- Richard Briffault, Joseph P. Chamberlain Professor of Legislation, Columbia Law School
- Jamie Raskin, Director, American University Washington College of Law Program on Law and Government
- Michael Boos, General Counsel, Citizens United and Citizens United Foundation
- Heather Gerken, J. Skelly Wright Professor of Law, Yale Law School
- Larry E. Ribstein, Associate Dean for Research, University of Illinois College of Law
- Richard L. Hasen, William H. Hannon Distinguished Professor of Law, Loyola Law School
- Joel Gora, Professor of Law, Brooklyn Law School
