LIBRARY READ-IN ON PLAZA APRIL 14

National Library Week is April 13-19, 2008, and National Library Workers Day is April 15, 2008! In recognition, the University Library will sponsor a "read-in" to highlight the library's Browsing Collection of popular fiction and non-fiction titles.

At noon on Monday, April 14, 2008, employees of the University Library will enjoy an hour of relaxing reading on the Library Plaza stage, weather permitting. Check out a Browsing Collection book (or bring your own favorite) and come join us! For more information about National Library Week, visit <http://www.ala.org/ala/pio/natlibraryweek/nlw.htm> or <http://ala-apa.org/about/nlwd.html>

EndNote

Need a place to collect, store, share, and organize references on the web? Try EndNote Web! Create an account through any of the ISI Web of Knowledge databases (Web of Science, Current Contents Connect, Biological Abstracts, or Journal Citation Reports) then you can access your EndNote Web account from any computer and use it with other library databases. A browser (Firefox or IE) plug-in enables you to automatically capture reference data from database search results. An MS word plug-in allows you to easily insert formatted citations into a paper and generate bibliographies as you write.

Please contact Joel Glogowski at jglogowski@gsu.edu for more information about EndNote Web.

GSU's ETD Database

Need to read a dissertation, but don't want to lug one home? Search GSU's Electronic Theses and Dissertation (ETD) Database and read one online! GSU's ETD database was created in 2004 and currently contains over 800 honors theses, master's theses, and dissertations.

You can find the ETD database at <http://etd.gsu.edu>.

For more information about ETDs at the Library, contact Joel Glogowski (jglogowski@gsu.edu).
