PRESIDENT BLAKE'S STRATEGIC PLAN FOR

2022 rests on four "Pillars" (see: <https://strategic.gsu.edu/pillars/>), with two of them being "Student Success" and "College to Careers" or "focusing on 'college to career' experiential learning." These goals began to be met in May, 2022, when the University announced the collaboration between our College of Nursing and Health Professions and Grady Memorial Hospital.

This is particularly appropriate since Grady's own School of Nursing program was merged into our School of Nursing in 1982, when Grady's school was closed by the Fulton-Dekalb Hospital Authority after graduating its last class. Since 1898, Grady had trained and graduated over 4,000 nurses. Now, their legacy will be continued with our new collaboration.

This joint nursing education program was made possible by a grant of $23.6 million from the Robert W. Woodruff Foundation. "The Woodruff gift is a game changer for [our] undergraduate nursing education," said Huanbiao Mo, dean of the Byrdine F. Lewis College of Nursing and Health Professions. John Hauptert, president and CEO, Grady Health System, added: "We are thrilled to partner with Georgia State to prepare nurses who will thrive in today's healthcare workforce. Grady will draw on our expertise as the state's top teaching hospital to create a leading-edge clinical training experience for student nurses, helping us better attract dedicated professionals."

Grady Hospital will be the primary clinical training site for Georgia State's nursing students during their final two years in the Nursing program for the Bachelor of Science degree. Student nurses at Grady Hospital will receive immediate instruction in their specialized programs and mentoring from experienced staff nurses. In addition, Georgia State will support nursing internships for undergraduate students.

For its part, Grady Hospital will hire more faculty and create a scholarship program for students who commit to working at the hospital after graduation. It plans to set up a program for any nurse to build skills and get leadership training; and will launch a nurse residency program to support new graduates transitioning to a clinical setting. All of this will help the hospital to address its critical nursing shortage.

"This partnership with Grady strongly supports two of the most impactful aspects of our university – student success and college to careers," said President Blake. "This partnership ensures the success of Georgia State nursing students and guarantees a place to begin their careers."

I RECENTLY HELPED JUDGE THE GSU

Undergraduate Research Conference, sponsored by the Honors College. Students presented research in mathematics and science, the social sciences, humanities and fine arts. The quality of the presentations was excellent, from conception and protocol to analysis and conclusions. These were students at an urban, public institution, who clearly have had excellent instruction and encouragement. It's fantastic how GSU prepares them for graduate school and professional careers.

Many of these students can't afford to travel or even take time off from work. Our Emeriti Association Honors College Just-In-Time Fund makes small grants to honors students to present their research at professional conferences, to accept internships, and to study abroad. Our engagement with the Honors College is just one of the ways the Emeriti Association supports GSU.

This year, the GSU Emeriti Association marks its 20th anniversary. It's amazing how much has happened in that time, and the progress GSU has made. Our service and accomplishments remain worthwhile. We are a respected part of the university, and our association promotes our interests and keeps us in contact with one another. We are planning a celebration at our annual holiday reception that will again take place next December, after a hiatus last year due to the pandemic.

In the meantime, we plan to make a short 20th anniversary video, similar to the one in 2012 for our 10th anniversary. If you haven't seen it, please take eight minutes to look on our website, <https://emeriti.gsu.edu/about-us-2/> (Scroll down to Emeriti Association History). We will highlight the accomplishments of our colleagues, our departments, our colleges, our students, and the university. Your ideas are welcome. If you're willing to appear in the video, we have professional help for writing and production.

A significant aspect of Georgia State's identity is that it is "part of the neighborhood" of downtown Atlanta. President Emeritus Carl Patton, as a former urban planner, first expanded Georgia State's core at the heart of downtown into the nearby stadium area with the beginning construction of the Convocation Center in what had been Turner Field. Former President Mark Becker continued to open up the downtown campus with further renovations that connected it with the city around it through "greenways," and further expansion into the stadium area. And with the announced collaboration between the University's School of Nursing and nearby Grady Memorial Hospital, our new President Brian Blake has expanded Georgia State, quite literally, into downtown Atlanta's very life.

UPDATES: USG AND UNIVERSITY

USG

On May 10, 2022, the Board of Regents (BOR) revised its policy on the process for selecting the presidents of USG colleges and universities. The BOR chair will now serve as chair of the institutional search committee, with the ability to appoint any number of other regents to the committee. A member is now allowed to be the chancellor or designee. Previously, the BOR chair only served as chair on the presidential search committee for openings at Georgia’s research universities—Georgia Tech, Georgia State University and the University of Georgia—and was only able to appoint six other regents to the committee.

The rationale for the revision was that the policy was made consistent for presidential searches at all USG schools with one form of search committee for all. Another change which should be noted, however, has little to do with consistency. No longer are the majority of the committee members required to be faculty.

UNIVERSITY

Georgia State has joined another collaboration to improve public health, thanks to $52 million in federal funding, with research professors at Emory University and Georgia State creating a drug development center to prevent the next pandemic. The Antiviral Countermeasures Development Center (AC/DC) is one of nine such centers nationally that are funded by the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases (NIAID).

Our new center is co-founded by two professors who have long worked together to develop successful antiviral drugs: Dr. George Painter, professor in the Department of Pharmacology and Chemical Biology at Emory University School of Medicine, CEO of the Drug Innovation Ventures at Emory (DRIVE), and executive director of the Emory Institute for Drug Development, and Dr. Richard Plemper, Distinguished University Professor and director of the Center for Translational Antiviral Research at Georgia State.

The Rialto Center for the Arts will merge with the College of the Arts, to provide cross-disciplinary collaborations between the Rialto and the college’s schools. The Rialto Series features national and international jazz artists, world music and dance, and the college’s performances.

President Blake presented rapper, actor, and entrepreneur Chris “Ludacris” Bridges an honorary Bachelor of Science degree in Music Management at this year’s commencement. Ludacris attended Georgia State in the 1990s before signing a record deal that launched his multiplatinum-selling career in hip-hop. In 2019, he joined Georgia State’s Creative Media Industries Institute as an artist-in-residence and partnered with the College of Law as part of their “Legal Life of . . .” series.

Chattahoochee Hike on April 13.

Emeriti Association sponsored two hikes along the Chattahoochee at the Chattahoochee River National Recreation Area, led by Professor Emeritus John DeCastro and Carolyn Cash. The first, on April 13 with 11 emeriti, was followed by lunch at the Mojave restaurant. The second, on May 11 with 5 emeriti, was followed by lunch at The Orient restaurant. No further hikes are scheduled for the summer. We plan to resume them in the fall.

Retirees are invited to ALL of the walks scheduled through the HR Well-being Office, in addition to most other wellness events. These can be found on the GSU campus calendar or the GSU Human Resources Events calendar. Note that these may change due to weather or other conditions. Events for the different Colleges can be accessed through the GSU Emeriti website: <https://emeriti.gsu.edu> under the “Events” tab.

And I received this note from Professor Emeritus Yezdi Bhada. “The Late LORENE PILCHER deserves special recognition for the substantive role she played in the founding of the GSU Emeriti Association. She was not merely a member of the initial faculty group that formed the Association and the succeeding Chair of the Steering Committee. Her enthusiastic support for creating this Association and her unselfish volunteering to get the work done were inspirational and productive. We express our sincere gratitude to her for her dedication on behalf of all GSU Emeriti.”

USG Retiree Council Meeting April 1, 2022

Report by Emerita Sandra Owen
alternate representative
sowen2@gsu.edu

The AON Retiree Health Exchange was acquired by ALIGHT in October 2021. For several years AON contracted out our HRA management to ALIGHT. This new business model will better integrate services. All USG retirees received an announcement of this change in March, 2021. By May 14, 2022, all University websites will need to replace current AON URL links and labels with those of ALIGHT.

AON Open Enrollment and Customer Service for 2022: eleven (11) medical plans were eliminated affecting 4,899 retirees, of whom only twenty-six percent (26%) chose a new plan. Sixty-six percent (66%) of USG retirees worked with an AON agent while thirty-four percent (34%) used computer based self-service enrollment.

AON advisors encouraged USG retirees to research differences among traditional Medicare, Medicare Advantage, and Medicare Supplemental Plans. This information can be found on the Medicare.gov website. AON will produce a video, specific to HRA, that informs a retiree's family of the process for informing the Health exchange of the retiree's death. (AON requires that they be informed no more than six months after the death.)

Retirees wanting to move from Medicare Plan F to Plan G need to contact their specific carrier.

Dr. Stuart Rayfield, Interim Executive Vice Chancellor, also addressed the Council, informing them that the Georgia legislature has reinstated "special instructional fees" in the state budget, thus eliminating the need for students' instructional fees. He also discussed the Regents' changes in the process for post-tenure review that led to the AAUP censure of the state's university system. He noted that USG schools are currently revising their policies on tenure and post tenure review to accord with the newly amended Regents Policy, with completion expected by 2023.

The USG Retiree Council replied to Dr. Rayfield with this prepared statement: "We support the AAUP's censure of the USG. Within each USG school policy and plan for tenure and post-tenure review, peer review must be an integral part of the review process."

We support the AAUP's censure of the USG. Within each USG school policy and plan for tenure and post-tenure review, peer review must be an integral part of the review process.
